Art. 533

Usufruct is the right of enjoying a thing, the property of which is vested in another, and to draw from the same all the profit, utility and advantages which it may produce, provided it be without altering the substance of the thing.

The obligation of not altering the substance of the thing takes place only in the case of perfect usufruct.

RCC 1870, Art. 533. (Same as Art. 533 of Proposed Revision of 1869)

Same as above.

CC 1825, Art. 525. (Projet, p. 48. Amendment I adopted; comment by redactors)

Par. 1 same as par. 1, above.

The obligation of not altering the substance of the thing takes place only in the case of a complete usufruct.

CC 1808, p. 110, Art. 1.

Usufruct is the right of enjoying a certain thing, the property of which is vested in another, and to draw from the same, all the profit, utility and advantages which it may produce, as the owner himself could do, provided it be without altering the substance of the thing.

This obligation of not altering the substance of the thing takes place only in the case of a complete usufruct.

CN 1804, Art. 578.

Usufruct is the right of enjoying things, the property of which is vested in another, as could the owner himself, but under the obligation of preserving its substance.
ART. 534. There are two kinds of usufruct:
Perfect usufruct, which is of things which the usufructuary can enjoy without changing their substance, though their substance may be diminished or deteriorated naturally by time or by the use to which they are applied; as a house, a piece of land, furniture and other movable effects.

And imperfect or quasi usufruct, which is of things which would be useless to the usufructuary, if he did not consume or expend them, or change the substance of them, as money, grain, liquors.

RCC 533, 535, 536, 549.

(RCC 1870, Art. 534. (Same as Art. 534 of Proposed Revision of 1869))

Same as above.

CC 1825, Art. 526. (Projet, p. 48. Amendment adopted; comment by redactors)

Par. 1 same as par. 1, above.
Perfect usufruct, which is of things which the usufructuary can enjoy without changing their substance, though their substance may be diminished or deteriorated naturally by time or the use to which they are applied; as a house, a piece of land, slaves, furniture and other moveable effects;
Par. 3 same as par. 3, above.

CC 1808, p. 110, Art. 2.
There are things which produce by themselves some advantage to the person who possesses them, without their substance being altered by the use to which they are applied; as a piece of land produces rent, &c. The person who has the usufruct of said things, is bound to preserve them as much as possible, in order to return them to the owner, when the usufruct is at an end; and such are the things properly susceptible of usufruct, and it is for this reason that they come under the denomination of what is called a perfect usufruct.

-p. 110, Art. 3.
On the contrary, there are things whose substance is altered and changed by use, as wine, oil, &c. which become useless to those who possess them, unless they make use of the same. Such things are not, properly speaking, susceptible of usufruct; nevertheless public utility has caused to be admitted a kind of usufruct in said things, and this is what is called incomplete usufruct.

Thus the usufructuary of such things has a right either to sell such things, or to make whatever use of
Art. 535

Perfect usufruct does not transfer to the usufructuary the ownership of the things subject to the usufruct; the usufructuary is bound to use them as a prudent administrator would do, to preserve them as much as possible, in order to restore them to the owner as soon as the usufruct terminates.

RCC—534, 550, 561, 567, 568.
RCC 1870, Art. 535. (Same as Art. 535 of Proposed Revision of 1869)
CC 1825, Art. 527. (Projet, p. 49. Amendment adopted; comment by redactors)

Imperfect usufruct, on the contrary, transfers to the usufructuary the property of the things subject to the usufruct, so that he may consume, sell or dispose of them, as he thinks proper, subject to certain charges hereinafter prescribed.

RCC—488 et seq., 534, 549, 561, 567.
RCC 1870, Art. 536. (Same as Art. 536 of Proposed Revision of 1869)
CC 1825, Art. 528. (Projet, p. 49. Amendment adopted; comment by redactors)

Usufruct is an incorporeal thing, because it consists in a right.

RCC—460, 471.
ART. 538. Usufruct is divisible; for if this right is vested in several persons at a time, there is but one usufruct, which is divided among them, each having his portion. The reason is because the object of this right is the receiving the fruits of the thing, which are corporeal and divisible.

RCC—460, 539.

ART. 539. Usufruct may, from its origin, be conferred on several persons in divided or undivided portions.

RCC—494, 538.

ART. 540. Usufruct may be established by all sorts of titles; by a deed of sale, by a marriage contract, by donation, compromise, exchange, last will and even by operation of law.

Thus the usufruct to which a father is entitled on the estate of his children during the marriage, is a legal usufruct.

RCC—221, 223, 555, 589, 628, 916, 1499, 1500, 1522, 1533, 1638, 2371, 2449.

RCC 1870, Art. 540.
Same as above.
Art. 541

Usufruct may be established on every description of estates, movable or immovable, corporeal and incorporeal.

RCC—448, 460, 461, 462, 471, 472.

Art. 542. Usufruct may be established simply, or to take place at a certain day, or under condition; in a word, under all such modifications as the person who gives such a right may be pleased to annex to it.

RCC—569, 608 et seq., 1519, 2020, 2021, 2043, 2051.

Art. 543. Usufruct may be established on every description of things, movable or immovable.

RCC—460, 461, 462, 471, 472.

Art. 544. Usufruct may be established by all sorts of titles, by a deed of sale, by a marriage contract, by donation, transaction, exchange, last will, and even by law.

Art. 545. Usufruct is established by law or by the voluntary acts of man.

Art. 546. Usufruct may be established simply, or to take place at a certain day, or under condition; in a word, under all such modifications as the person who gives such a right may be pleased to annex to it.

RCC—569, 608 et seq., 1519, 2020, 2021, 2043, 2051.

Art. 547. Usufruct may be established on every description of things, movable or immovable.

Art. 545

Natural fruits are such as are the spontaneous product of the earth; the product and increase of cattle are likewise natural fruits.

The fruits, which result from industry bestowed on a piece of ground, are those which are obtained by cultivation.

Civil fruits are rents of real property, the interest of money, and annuities.

All other kinds of revenue or income derived from property by the operation of the law or private agreement, are civil fruits.

If the usufruct includes things which cannot be used without being expended, such as money, provisions, liquors, the usufructuary has a right to use the same, but under the obligation of returning the same quantity, quality and value, or their estimated price, at the expiration of the usufruct.

-p. 113, Art. 15.
Si l'usufruit comprend des choses dont on ne peut faire usage ou retirer d'utilité,* sans en disposer, les consommer, ou en changer la substance, l'usufruitier a le droit de les consommer et d'en disposer à sa volonté, mais à la charge d'en rendre de pareille quantité, qualité et valeur au propriétaire, ou leur estimation à la fin de l'usufruit.
Art. 550

If the usufruct comprehends things which, though not consumed at once, are gradually impaired by wear and decay, such as furniture, the usufructuary has, in like manner, a right to make use of them for the purposes for which they are intended; and at the expiration of the usufruct he is obliged only to restore them in the state in which they may be, provided they have not been impaired through his fault or neglect.

And even should any of these things be entirely worn out by use at the expiration of the usufruct, the usufructuary is not bound to make good the same.

CC 1808, p. 114, Art. 18.
Par. 1 same as par. 1, above; but no punctuation after “profits.”

Accordingly he may cut trees on land of which he has the usufruct, dig stones, sand and other materials both for his use and for sale, provided he act in those respects as a prudent father, and so as that the inheritance* be not thereby rendered entirely barren or useless.

*RCC 1870, Art. 552.

The usufructuary has a right to make use of them for the purposes for which they are intended, and at the expiration of the usufruct he is obliged only to restore them in the state in which they may be, without impairment through his fault or neglect.

Projet du Gouvernement (1800), Book II, Title III, Art. 14.

Si l’usufruit comprend des choses qui, sans se consumer de suite, se détériorent peu à peu par l’usage, comme les meubles meublans, l’usufruitier a également le droit de s’en servir pour l’usage auquel elles sont destinées, et n’est obligé de les rendre, à la fin de l’usufruit, que dans l’état où elles se trouvent, non détériorées par son dol ou par sa faute.

Si même quelqu’une de ces choses se trouve entièrement consumée par l’usage à la fin de l’usufruit, l’usufruitier est dispensé de la représenter.

Ainsi il peut faire des coupes de bois sur le fonds dont il a l’usufruit, en tirer de la terre, des pierres, du sable et autres matériaux, mais pour son usage seulement, et pour l’amélioration et l’exploitation de ce fonds, pourvu que ce soit en bon père de famille, et sans abuser de ce droit.

*RCC 1870, Art. 551.

L’usufruitier a le droit d’être retirer tous les émoluums que la chose sujette à l’usufruit a coutume de produire.

Ainsi il peut faire des coupes de bois sur le fonds dont il a l’usufruit, en tirer des pierres, du sable et d’autres matériaux, tant pour son usage que pour vendre, pourvu que ce soit en bon père de famille et de manière que l’héritage* ne soit pas par là rendu totalement stérile ou inutile.

*CC 1808, p. 114, Art. 18.
Art. 552. The usufructuary has a right to the enjoyment and proceeds of mines and quarries in the land subject to the usufruct, if they were actually worked before* the commencement of the usufruct; but he has no right to mines and quarries not opened.

RCC—505, 551.

RCC 1870, Art. 552.
Same as above.

CC 1825, Art. 545. (Projet, p. 52. Addition adopted; no comment)
L'usufruitier peut jouir des mines et carrières, qui sont dans le fonds dont il a l'usufruit, et en vendre les produits, si elles sont en exploitation au moment de* l'ouverture de l'usufruit; mais il n'a aucun droit aux mines et carrières non encore ouvertes.

CC 1808. No corresponding article.

CN 1804, Art. 598.
He enjoys as well, in the same manner as the owner, the mines and quarries which were actually worked at the commencement of the usufruct; nevertheless, if such working cannot be carried on without a concession, the usufructuary shall be able to enjoy it only after having obtained permission of the Government.
He has no right to mines and quarries not yet opened, nor to peat-bogs, exploitation of which has not been begun, nor to treasure which might be discovered during the term of the usufruct.

*Note error in English translation of French text; “worked before” should be “being worked at the time of.”
English translation of French text incomplete; should include “yet.”
ART. 553. The usufructuary enjoys the increase brought by alluvion to the land of which he has the usufruct, but has no right to islands formed in a stream not navigable opposite the land; they belong to the riparian proprietors, as is prescribed in the title; Of Things.

In like manner he has no right, not even the right of enjoyment, to the treasure which may be discovered in the land of which he has the usufruct, unless he himself has discovered it, in which case he shall only enjoy the right granted by law to such persons as find a treasure in a piece of land, the property of another person.

(p. 115, Art. 21.)

L'usufruitier peut jouer par lui-même, louer ou affermer, vendre ou donner son droit à un autre. Mais tous les contrats et autres actes qu'il passe à cet égard, quelque durée qu'il ait voulu leur donner, sont résolus de plein droit par l'extinction de son usufruit.

CN 1804, Art. 595, sentence 1.

The usufructuary may enjoy by himself, or lease to another, or even sell or transfer his right by gratuitous title.

L'usufruitier peut jouer par lui-même, donner à ferme à un autre, ou même vendre ou céder son droit à titre gratuit.
ART. 557. The usufructuary takes things in the state in which they are; but he can not obtain possession of the things subject to the usufruct, without having caused to be made in presence of the owner, or after the owner has been duly summoned, if he be within the State, an inventory with the estimated value of the estate, both movable and immovable, subject to the usufruct, by a notary public duly authorized by the judge to that effect, and in the presence of two witnesses.

If the owner be absent from the State, and is not represented by any person therein, the judge shall appoint a counsel for him to assist at the inventory.

CC 1825, Art. 551. (Projet, p. 53. Amendment adopted; no comment)

L’usufruitier doit donner caution qu’il jouira en bon père de famille, des biens, meubles et immeubles sujets à l’usufruit, et qu’il remplira fidèlement toutes les obligations qui lui sont imposées par la loi et par le titre constitutif de son usufruit.

CC 1808, p. 114, Art. 23, par. 1.

The usufructuary is bound to give security for the amount of the inventory, as a pledge for his enjoying as a good father, if it be an immovable estate; that he shall return the property in the state in which it is found, not grown worse through any fraud or neglect of his, if it be ordinary furniture; and that he shall pay the estimated value specified in the inventory, if it consists of things liable to be worn out by use.

CN 1804, Art. 601, clause 1.

He gives security that he will use the things as a prudent administrator would do, if it is not dispensed with by the act by which the usufruct is established:

Il donne caution de jouir en bon père de famille, s’il n’en est dispensé par l’acte constitutif de l’usufruit:

*Note error in English translation of French text; “furniture” should be “movables.”
ART. 559. The amount of this security shall be the estimated value of the moveables subject to the usufruct, according to the inventory, and such further sum as shall be fixed by the judge according to the nature of the immovable property subject to the usufruct, to answer for the damages which the usufructuary or those for whom he is responsible, may commit thereon.

L'usufruit finit avant la mort de l'usufruitier, par la perte, l'extinction ou la destruction de la chose qui y est sujette.

Ainsi, l'usufruit qui n’est établi que sur un bâtiment, finit, si ce bâtiment vient à être détruit par un incendie ou autre accident, ou à s’écrouler de vétusté.

En ce cas, l’usufruitier n’aura pas même d’usufruit sur les matériaux de ce bâtiment, ni sur le terrain où il était situé; son usufruit devant être restrain (restrict) à ce qui se trouve spécialement énoncé dans son titre.

Mais si l’usufruit était établi sur un domaine dont le bâtiment faisait partie, l’usufruitier jouirait du sol et des matériaux.

ART. 615. The thing subject to the usufruct is considered as lost, when it undergoes from accident, such a change in its form that it can no longer be applied to the use for which it was originally destined. Therefore the usufruct of a field or lot is extinguished, if one or the other be so covered with water by inundation that it becomes changed into a pond or swamp. Art. 630

CN 1804, Art. 626.
As in the case of usufruct, a person can not enjoy the rights of use and of habitation, unless he has previously given security and drawn up schedules and inventories.

Projet du Gouvernement (1800), Book II, Title III, Art. 47.
Those who have such rights are bound to give security, and to make a schedule and inventory of the estate, as the usufructuary is bound to do.

ART. 630. But the person having the use is not bound to give security nor to make an inventory, if the thing remains in the possession of the owner, and his right is confined to exacting out of the fruits produced by the thing what is necessary for his personal wants and those of his family; for in relation to these fruits he is not bound to make any restitution.

Art. 631.
The rights to use and habitation are regulated by the title which has established them, and receive accordingly a more or less extensive sense; it being well understood that these conventions do not exceed the limits of the laws on use and habitation, for if they do, they create other rights.

Thus a right to receive the fruits of a property and to sell and dispose of them freely,* would be a right of usufruct, and all the laws concerning usufruct would be applicable to it.

If the title be silent respecting the extent of the right, and if it speaks only of the use in general, without any precise determination, the rights to use shall be determined by the following rules.

Si le titre ne s'explique pas sur cette étendue, et qu'il parle seulement de l'usage général, sans rien préciser, les droits d'usage seront déterminés par les règles qui suivent.

ART. 633. That which distinguishes the usufruct of a property from the use of it, is this, that the enjoyment of the usufructuary is not confined to what is necessary for his consumption, but he takes all the fruits, and can dispose of them as he pleases.
The person, on the other hand, who has only the use of an estate, has a right only to such fruits as may be necessary for his daily wants and those of his family.

But he may claim so much of those fruits as may be necessary to supply the wants of the woman he has married, and of his children born since the use has been granted to him.

(Ce qui distingue essentiellement l'usufruit d'un fonds d'avec son usage, est que la jouissance de l'usufruitier n'est pas bornée à la simple consommation, et qu'il peut prendre tous les fruits et en disposer à son profit.

Celui au contraire, qui n'a que l'usage d'un fonds, ne peut exiger des fruits de ce fonds qu'autant qu'il en faut pour ses besoins journaliers et ceux de sa famille.

Mais l'usager peut exiger de ces fruits pour les besoins même de la femme qu'il a épousée, et des enfants qui lui sont survenus depuis la concession de l'usage.)

CC 1808, p. 124, Art. 69.
The person who has the use of an estate or of the fruits of an estate, has a right only to such fruits as may be necessary for his daily wants and those of his family.

He may indeed claim so much of said fruits as may be necessary to supply the wants of the woman he has married and of his children born since the use has been granted to him.

CC 1804, Art. 630.
The person who has the use of the fruits of an estate has a right only to so much of them as may be necessary for his wants and those of his family.

He may claim so much of them as may be necessary to supply the wants of his children born since the use has been granted to him.

Art. 634. He who has the use of the fruits of an estate can not go upon the estate to exercise his rights, still less is he permitted to live there, unless he have thereon a right of habitation; he has only an action against the owner to obtain from him such of the fruits as may be necessary for his daily wants and those of his family.

He who has the use may, therefore, cause to be fixed by the judge, from time to time, the proportion of fruits which he has a right to extract from the owner of the property; and this must be determined according to the condition of him who has the use, and the fortune of him who conferred the right, if the title be not explicit on this subject, and according to the increase or diminution of the family of him who has the use.

TITLE IV—OF PREDIAL SERVITUDES OR SERVITUDES OF LAND

Chapter 1—General Principles

Art. 646. All servitudes which affect lands may be divided into two kinds, personal and real.

Personal servitudes are those attached to the person for whose benefit they are established, and terminate with his life. This kind of servitude is of three sorts: usufruct, use and habitation.

Real servitudes, which are also called predial or landed servitudes, are those which the owner of an estate enjoys on a neighboring estate for the benefit of his own estate.
