

Magnitude of preparations

Paul Macarius Hebert

Date: 1947-1948

Repository Citation

Paul Macarius Hebert, Magnitude of preparations, Nuremberg Trials Documents (1947-1948).
Available at: http://digitalcommons.law.lsu.edu/nuremberg_docs/35

This Document is brought to you for free and open access by the Hebert Nuremberg Collection at LSU Law Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Nuremberg Trials Documents by an authorized administrator of LSU Law Digital Commons. For more information, please contact kayla.reed@law.lsu.edu.

①

The magnitude of the preparations in which the defendants were engaged make it difficult to believe that they did not know these preparations were for war; for aggressive war because they knew that the policy of the German government was one of aggression backed by the threat of force. The defendants all take the position that the evidence does not show that they knew there would be war. What the IMT said with reference to Raeder seems a complete answer to this position:

"The defendant Raeder testified that neither he, nor von Fritsch, nor von Blomberg, believed that Hitler actually meant war, a conviction which the defendant Raeder claims that he held up to 22 August 1939. The basis of this conviction was his hope that Hitler would obtain a 'political solution' of Germany's problems. But all

The magnitude of the preparations in which the defendants were engaged make it difficult to believe that they did not know these preparations were for war; for aggressive war because they knew that the policy of the German government was one of aggression backed by the threat of force. The defendants all take the position that the evidence does not show that they knew there would be war. What the IMT said with reference to Raeder seems a complete answer to this position:

"The defendant Raeder testified that neither he, nor von Fritsch, nor von Blomberg, believed that Hitler actually meant war, a conviction which the defendant Raeder claims that he held up to 22 August 1939. The basis of this conviction was his hope that Hitler would obtain a 'political solution' of Germany's problems. But all that this means, when examined, is the belief that Germany's position would be so good, and Germany's armed might so overwhelming

that the territory desired could be obtained without fighting for it."

(IMT Judgment p. 191)

that this means, when examined, is the belief that Germany's position would be so good, and Germany's armed might so overwhelming that the territory desired
could be obtained without fighting for it."
(IMT Judgment p.191)