Comments on the Conflict of Laws

STUDENT SYMPOSIUM

By Way of Introduction

During the autumn quarter of 1949, I had the honor and pleasure of being a visiting professor at the Louisiana State University Law School. The three months I could spend there will be cherished in my memory.

When, shortly after the beginning of the course on Conflict of Laws, I announced to the students that they were expected to write at least two term papers, the apprehensions with which they had expected the visiting stranger seemed to be justified. I hope
