

Planning of the war as that term is used in the Charter and Control Council Law cannot be confined to planning in the strict military sense. Military Strategy and the conduct of operations constitute only one phase of the planning without economic planning and preparations the plans of military strategists and [CROSSED OUT def] leaders of a State who plan a war would constitute an idle dream lacking the grim reality of which wars are made.