Dictionary of the Civil Code

The Dictionary of the Civil Code, an English translation of more than 1600 entries selected from the Vocabulaire Juridique of Gérard Cornu under the auspices of the Association Henri Capitant des amis de la culture juridique française, introduces to readers, jurists or not, the essential concepts of the French Civil Code. Key to an understanding of the civil law through its terminology as translated and explained in English, the definitions are enriched with references made to the Civil Code of Louisiana.

This work of reference on the French legal and civil law culture is an essential tool for comparatists, civilians, jurilinguists and translators.

Two teams have worked during more than two years on both sides of the Atlantic. The Louisiana team was chaired by Professor Alain Levasseur, at LSU Law, with Professor Randy Trahan as a co-pilot. Professor Marie-Eugénie Laporte-Legeais (Université de Poitiers and Juriscope) supervised the French team.

As Levasseur and Trahan note in Our Approach to Translation (p. xiii):

[W]e in Louisiana have, for centuries, spoken and written the civil law in English, and since 1870 only in English. Since then, confronted with the dominance of the English language and the increased influence of the common law carried on the back of the English language, we have nevertheless succeeded in turning the English language into an instrument for the defense of the civil law.

The Center of Civil Law Studies proudly contributed, with Professor Moréteau, assisted by Alexandru-Daniel On, translating some 130 entries.

As Levasseur and Trahan go on saying (p. xiv):

[T]ranslating the Vocabulaire in English was a matter not only of promoting our Louisiana civil law tradition (...) but of securing the survival of the civil law tradition in general by anchoring it in the English language and not just any English language, but an English language different from the English language of the common law.

The Louisiana Civil Code Translation Project Moves On

In recent weeks, hundreds of translated Civil Code articles have been added to the Louisiana Civil Code website, which now contains the following titles in the French language:

Meantime, both the English and French texts have been updated with the recent legislative changes.

LL.M. Program at LSU Law

The LSU Law Center is now accepting applications for the Master of Laws (LL.M.) in Comparative Law program for the 2015-2016 academic year. The LSU Law Center's distinctive curriculum, with fully-developed civil and common law programs, provides an exceptional and intense legal education. In addition to a full coverage of United States laws and legal methodology, the LL.M. at LSU Law features unique advantages, such as the opportunity to study the civil law in English, access to one of the best comparative law libraries in the world, and competitive tuition rates combined with an affordable cost-of-living. For over 70 years, LSU Law has provided an LL.M. education of the highest caliber, while maintaining affordability; alumni of the LL.M. Program have gone on to positions at some of the top universities and law firms in the world.

More information is available on the LL.M. webpage, or contact us by email at llmadmission@law.lsu.edu or by telephone at 225-578-7831 for more information about this unique opportunity.
